

Emerging Cultural Leaders Applicant Biography:
Charlotte Sundquist

As my current position as International Operations Manager with Bennett Marine, I have the opportunity to connect with members of various cultures throughout the world. This is truly one of the most interesting aspects of my job, as I am required to travel internationally for business. I have a personal love of travel and cultures, and have been to over twenty different countries. My vacations typically involve backpacking in locations such as Morocco, New Zealand or Mexico.

This professional opportunity had only come about within the few years. For almost twenty years, I served in a mid-level management capacity with UPS; the largest transportation company in the world. In 2005, I decided to reevaluate my goals and ambitions, and resigned from my position as a business manager. My plan was to focus on developing a new set of goals and priorities; both personally and professionally.

Through this process, I have determined three areas of focus: art, international business and assisting others by utilizing my skills obtained from my previous employment and experience. I am passionate about my interests, and convey by giving my full efforts to all that I set my mind to accomplish.
