

Reflections of community values and concerns that shape architecture

Chestnut Court

Chestnut Court

Mandela Gateway

Mandela Gateway

Michael Willis, FAIA

Architect, San Francisco

Michael Willis founded Michael Willis Architects in 1988. His firm was founded on the belief that institutional and non-profit clients are entitled to the highest quality of design. By advocating public participation in the design process and in the built form, MWA has been successful at creating an architecture that can be a unifying social force, creating environments that are human and welcoming. In the last sixteen years the firm has gained a national reputation for integrating urban design and community participation in civic, affordable housing, and neighborhood revitalization projects in Northern California, Oregon, Michigan, Washington, and Missouri. Willis is a registered architect, chair of the AIA Professional Interest Area (PIA) national committee, past president of AIA San Francisco, and past chair of the Northern California section of the National Organization of Minority Architects (NOMA).

FAU /BCC Higher Education Complex
111 East Las Olas Boulevard
Fort Lauderdale
11th Floor, Room 1100
Free admission - Open to the public

Saturday
February 23
5.00 pm

This presentation is made possible with the support of the Broward County Metropolitan Planning Organization and with the assistance of the College of Architecture, Urban and Public Affairs, Broward Community Design Collaborative, and the FAU School of Architecture.

