Good afternoon,

We are applying for reimbursement for veterinary expenses for a dog named Rocco pulled from BCAC.

Rocco was part of a bonded pair we were told could be separated. We pulled his senior sister & found her a retirement home.

Rocco was hyper anxious at the shelter.

His canine tooth was broken during shelter playgroup. This requires an extraction but we were told it could not be done at the shelter.

Rocco's shelter notes also indicate one instance of vomiting & loose stool. A fecal test revealed hookworms and de-wormer was given. There is no further mention of vomiting.

A preliminary vet visit after we had pulled Rocco revealed the extraction surgery would be complicated because the tooth was broken at the gum line. We had originally been quoted an average of $500 for this extraction surgery but the cost of the more complex surgery was more than $1500 including X-rays and medication.

Similarly, Rocco had been vomiting between 7 & 15 times a day in his foster home in various amounts. We have taken him to 3 different vets and specialists to get to the root of his issue and it is still ongoing. The only reference to vomiting on his shelter notes was in conjunction with the hookworm positive fecal test so this issue was completely unexpected. He has had stomach x-rays & many different medications

We are a small rescue and had we been aware of the medical issues Rocco had and the extent of treatment needed we most likely would not have been able to pull him. It is also unlikely that he would have been adopted; the shelter offers zero cost adoption and it would have been extremely difficult to attract an adopter with the resources to pay out over $2000 for a dog they have just adopted.

I can confirm that we have received no donations at all for this dog and the medical bills were paid by the rescue.

You will see both the name of the rescue president (Claire Cornish) and vice president (Wendy Betulia) on his paperwork.

If you require copies of his X-rays, bloodwork or to see the actual tooth that was extracted please let me know but each of these is listed as a line item on the paid invoices attached.

With thanks.
