The Charter of Broward County, Florida, has been substantially revised as of November 4, 2008. For detailed information on all amendments, please refer to Appendix A which lists all changes made to the Charter since it went into effect on January 1, 1975.

This is a true and correct copy of the Broward County Charter, as certified on February 16, 2009, by Bertha Henry, County Administrator, in and for Broward County, Florida, and Ex-Officio Clerk of the Board of Broward County Commissioners.

Historical Introduction

On November 5, 1974, the voters of Broward County approved the Broward County Charter. Charter Government went into effect in Broward County on January 1, 1975.

The Charter brought home rule to Broward County, which had become a County by an act of the State Legislature in 1915. For the next 60 years, the County Commission had to look to the State Legislature for approval of local bills effecting change in County government.

On October 3, 1973, the County Commission voted unanimously to conduct a comprehensive study of County government as provided for in the 1968 Florida Constitution. A 15-member Charter Commission worked for nine months, producing the Charter document which was approved by referendum on November 5, 1974, by a vote of 77,889 to 59,898.

In addition to bringing home rule to Broward County, the Charter expanded the County Commission from five to seven members, created a strong administrator form of County government, and established a Countywide land use planning agency.

The Charter also created a Charter Review Commission to study all phases of County government and propose changes in the Charter. Changes may also be proposed by the County Commission and by initiative of the people. Voters must approve all changes.

This Charter contains all the changes in the Broward County Charter which have been approved by the voters through November 4, 2008.
